The Year's Busiest Five Hours

Tomorrow the Day; 8 to 1 the Hours; Palais Royal the Place

The busiest five hours of the year, in the Home Needs Departments, are now on "Labor Day." It's an evolution—years ago a Special Sale was prepared for these five morning hours, and from a comparatively small beginning has developed the greatest sale of the year. It's logical—the man with the purse is at home and the wife has learned that the best possible bargains are offered. Thousands of eyes are today looking for the Palais Royal announcement of the Labor Day Sale. Here it is—for tomorrow, from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. Close promptly at 1 o'clock.

Curtains

Think of $15,000 invested in Lace Curtains alone. The stock is divided into three sections. First, the new patterns for 1907-08, offered at special prices. Second, the makers' remaining lots of 1907 patterns, bought and offered at a reduction of one-third to nearly one-half. Third, the smallest lots, one and two pairs of a pattern, offered at exactly half price.
